How the pandemic has affected consumer behaviour and values

TRENDS

Consumers 'rewire' priorities and take action on environment, waste and health . . . . . 366

Tetra Pak's 2021 Index explores how consumer motivation and behaviour is changing worldwide and how some of the trends will remain relevant in the post-pandemic world. Tetra Pak unveils how Covid-19 has made consumers rethink the way they live, and fundamentally shift how they act in the latest Tetra Pak Index reports ...

RAW MATERIAL

The power of agronomy in creating nutritious, delicious fruit ingredients . . . . . 370

With consumers becoming more aware of the environmental and health implications of their eating habits, spurred on in part by the COVID-19 pandemic, consumption of plant-based foods and beverages has never been more popular. We all want to incorporate more vitamins, minerals and fibre into our diets and as a result, the popularity of fruit ingredients with nutritional benefits and a delicious taste is at an all-time high ...

ANALYTICS

No more time-consuming counting by hand: Unique assist mode automatically identifies colonies of the same type and makes it possible to conduct a colony count with just a few clicks . . . . . 374

Regular colony counts are part of the day-to-day tasks of many laboratories in order to rule out the contamination of products with bacteria, viruses, yeasts, or molds during production. To do this, Petri dishes containing the relevant samples are evaluated in order to determine the number of colonies formed. While the classic manual counting method means that every single colony has to be marked individually, automatic devices can analyze numerous Petri dishes of the same type very quickly ...

Long-term partnership continues: Bad Meinberger and KHS implement future-proof line conversion . . . . . 380

Beverage bottles made of glass have again become increasingly popular in the last few years. Lots of consumers and beverage brands are now consciously opting for this type of packaging. A good number of bottlers are thus adding glass containers to their portfolio or expanding their production capacities. They are often then faced with the question of whether to invest in a new system or convert an existing one. Mineral water bottling plant Bad Meinberger was no exception here. The answer was provided by the line specialists from KHS ...
